Stylist Christine Hamilton puts clothing from the Fall collection of prominent American fashion designer Hogan McLaughlin, to use in this editorial on The Quarterly. In 2011, Hogan met and collaborated with style icon Daphne Guinness on his first garments, which ended up on display in the windows of Barneys NYC, and at the Museum at FIT. Later that year, McLaughlin launched his first collection under his name, and was subsequently profiled by The New York Times, WWD, Vogue.com, among other publications. Since then, pieces have also been worn by avant-fashion icon Michelle Harper, Class Actress's Elizabeth Harper, and Lady Gaga.
